If you are in the airline industry and work as part of the cabin crew or cockpit crew, you know very well what jet lag is. You know the feeling...fatigue and disorientation, broken sleep, confusion, becoming uptight, dehydration...the list goes on and on. Even if you think you have got used to jet lag and can adjust to it, maybe your body hasn't. It needs all the help it can get.

No question about it - jet lag is a pain! It can ruin a stopover and wreck your social plans when you get home again and want to squeeze in a couple of "nights out" before your next long haul flight!

You know only too well that as a flight attendant or cockpit crew member you have to work long hours on seemingly never ending flights, crossing every time zone imaginable and all the time your body clock is running in overdrive, trying to catch up!. All the while you have to keep smiling and attend to the passengers needs and serve them with a smile. Difficult job indeed if you have to do it hour after hour, no matter how tired you are.

And if you are cockpit crew, maximum concentration is required and there is no room for fatigue or disorientation - hundreds of lives depend on it.

How Often Do You Find Yourself Saying:

"I Wish I Knew How To Reduce Or Eliminate Jet Lag"

Well now you can! An innovative technology based product, Q-Link is a pendant that will make you feel more energized. Also, after that long and grueling international flight, wearing a QLink, you should not feel the immense jet lag that you usually do. The recovery time will also be reduced. You'll be raring to go after a good sound sleep, as QLink also helps you sleep better too. That fatigued, depleted feeling should also be gone.

Hundreds Of Cabin Crew And Cockpit Crew Have Tried QLink And Been Amazed By Its Results.

Michelle Kwon, a Flight Attendant from San Francisco, CA, USA told us:

"I have been a flight attendant for 11 years and have always thought that I coped fairly well with jet lag, until I felt the difference when I started wearing the QLink Pendant. The first time I noticed a dramatic difference was after a round trip to Japan.

After the flight I was still thinking clearly, even though I still felt some physical tiredness I did not have that spacey feeling I so often experience after long international trips. I would highly recommend the QLink Pendant to every flight attendant, on any airline, and to anybody else that travels by air frequently".

As a flight attendant or pilot, you may well be familiar with Electromagnetic Fields (EMF) as well as Jet Lag. What is/are EMF? EMF is an electromagnetic field that occurs every time electricity is produced. It disturbs the balance of the internal body rhythms directing your energies towards unnecessary areas. The body's natural energy is thrown off its balance by the interference of man - made energies. The upshot of it all is that you feel tired more easily and have less energy.

Think about a normal day at "the office":

More than likely, you awoke this morning to an electric alarm clock placed within a foot of your bed, made breakfast and coffee using electrical appliances like a coffee maker, toaster or microwave, maybe checked out the morning news on your television, used an electric shaver, toothbrush, or hair dryer and possibly spoke on a cordless phone - all of which bombard you with Electromagnetic Fields or EMF, as you use these items.

You did all this before getting into your car (powered by hundreds of micro-computers), opening your garage door with an electric opener, driving to work all along roads intersected with power lines, stopping off for a snack at a store using electronic bar coding scanner and talking on your cell phone. Yes, you're right, more Electro Magnetic Fields or EMF for your body to deal with!

When you got to the airport, ready for your pre-flight briefing, perhaps you walked through automatic doors, turned on overhead fluorescent lights, checked the computer, or answered a cordless phone. You may not have even noticed that there were satellite dishes and /or cell phone masts on top of your building or that there was an electric substation in your neighbourhood.....and all that BEFORE you even boarded the aircraft!

But don't worry, help is at hand. Meet QLink!

QLink - The Miracle Pendant Which Eliminates EMF And Helps To Reduce The Effects Of Jet Lag

What Can QLink Do?

- It strengthens your resilience and resistance to the effects of stress.
- It increases your energy and enhances your mental performance, especially under pressure.
- It increases your capacity to function in EMF saturated environments.

QLink is based on a pioneering branch of quantum physics called SRT or Sympathetic Resonance Technology. You will notice the effects of wearing the QLink pendant within a matter of days, or with many wearers, within hours.

So how does it work? We won't bore you with the science, but quite simply, the body, once strengthened by the QLink, is not stressed or traumatised by EMF as it does not allow EMF to put the body off its own natural rhythms.

By strengthening the body's own natural energy and innate intelligence, the QLink allows it to recognise and differentiate between which external energies are healthy, and which are not. The body thrives on natural energies but is thrown off balance by many man-made energies.

Thus the body remains centred and working at its optimum level. QLink works and is backed up by a huge amount of independent scientific research!
